4-day courses are primarily designed for co-ops meeting one day a week with students studying four days at home. These courses do not have composition or writing lessons incorporated into the literature schedule. However, the student will be required to write a weekly 1-paragraph journal entry.

Conventional courses follow the traditional common school track of English studies. Writing instruction is integrated into the schedule.

Chronological courses are designed for home schools desiring to study the progress of literature chronologically. Writing instruction is integrated into the schedule.

Please note: All courses are “stand-alone” units. None of the courses has prerequisites or need to be studied in any particular order.
