

A Short Autobiography

It's all about the words, or so I've been told. Words can persuade, dissuade, evince, and convince; destroy or annoy like the complaints of Portnoy (thank you Philip Roth). Words are the magic that make the world turn; the turn of the phrase that moves the shakers, and shakes the movers. Words are my craft, and I use them well as befits a follower of the True Word (John 1:1). I am a page that aches for a word that speaks on a theme that is timeless (thank you, Jonathan Livingston Seagull), and I would love to have the opportunity to work with you. Currently I own a start-up company of tech-writers called "Pen for Hire." (Similar to "gun for hire" but more dangerous....) We write curriculum, travel guides, study guides, and anything else folks will let us get our pens on. Previous to this I have been a student, Merit Scholar, teacher, tutor, principal, special education instructor, brain trainer, child-development center director, wife, mother of three, grandmother, life coach, editor, dreamer, thinker, and textbook author. I love words, and words are made up of letters. Here are my letters, or my curriculum vitae, as those letters are sometimes called:

- BA in Humanities (Bob Jones University) with emphasis in Educational Psychology
- MS in School Administration and Supervision (also Bob Jones University)
- PhD in Pastoral Ministry (Atlantic Coast Seminary) with emphasis on curriculum development and teacher training
